

Christmas starts with Christ

In the 21st century, parents-to-be proudly announce the coming birth by showing friends and family the scan of the baby. The new Christmas starts with Christmas campaign Baby Scan Jesus poster (pictured left) uses

He's on His way

Christmas starts with Christ

this convention to place the birth of Christ in an ultra-contemporary context. It is highly impactful. It has a sense of immediacy. It creates anticipation. And theologically it speaks of both the humanity and divinity of Jesus Christ.

There is no doubt that it will capture people's attention, generate headlines and create countless conversations about the true meaning of Christmas.

Research has revealed that 85 per cent of people agree with the statement that "Christmas should be called Christmas because we are still a Christian country". But it also shows that only 12 per cent of adults know the facts of the Christmas story in any detail.
