

Red rose tribute

A poignant reminder of a life-line charity is now flourishing in Victoria Park, Stretford.

Trafford Mayor Cllr Stephen Adshead and Mayoress Cllr Judith Lloyd have planted a red rose named after Professor Peter Maguire, one of the founder members of CALL (Cancer Aid and Listening Line).

All 10 Greater Manchester councils have joined in the tribute by planting roses.

"This is a fantastic charity providing support to cancer patients and their families. Professor Maguire has left a great legacy and we are delighted to be asked to support the planting of a long lasting tribute to him," said the Mayor.

CALL was set up in 1982 as a listening befriending helpline for people who are affected by cancer. If you would like further information please ring 0845 123 23 29 between 7.30pm and 10.30pm every evening.
