Chainsaw art at Victoria Park

Three beautifully carved decorative totem poles now have pride of place in Victoria Park's under fives play area, thanks to the Friends of Victoria Park and distinguished chainsaw carver Mick Burns.

These are the latest additions to the Trafford in Bloom entry and are seen as an important weapon in the park's efforts to secure Green Flag status. What makes the carvings even more special is the fact that local schoolchildren have been involved in deciding what sculptural animals and other features should be on them.
